- Compensation: £40k - £60k (based on experience)

We are looking for an experienced Senior Researcher with account and team management experience to lead on a number of our global mental health research projects, growing this area of our work over the coming years. Are you:

- Looking for a role where you can bring your significant experience working as a researcher within an agency or consulting firm for private sector clients?
- Passionate about working at the intersection of mental health and the private sector?
- An experienced manager of teams to deliver high quality research and insights projects?
- Strategic, authentic and results driven?

About Prospira Global

Prospira Global is a boutique consulting agency working to accelerate global action on mental health through private sector solutions. If you are passionate about mental health, have an analytical mind, love for social research and want to join a small but fast growing team we would love to hear from you.

Our clients understand the need for a holistic approach to mental health and require bespoke evidence-based solutions to result in maximum impact for both businesses and the world.

Our work is guided by intelligence through our unique networks, experience and metrics to inform mentally healthy products, philanthropy, promotion, people & policies. We specialize in providing:

1. Business advisory for holistic mental health solutions
2. Philanthropic advisory for philanthropists with an interest in global mental health, including how mental health intersects with the Sustainable Development Goals
3. Implementation support for businesses, philanthropists and investors seeking to design and execute impact strategies and initiatives.

We are a values-led organization, aiming to unlock potential of both our team and our clients to play a key role in accelerating action on mental health through effective private sector action.

Prospira Global has established itself as a leading global boutique advisory and intelligence firm committed to accelerating effective private sector investments and action on mental health. As we enter our third full year of operations we are now seeking to hire our core staff to lead through our next three year strategy, to establish our team and core operations.

The Role:

This role will provide you with the opportunity to develop a deep understanding of mental health impact across the private sector, equipping you with valuable skills for a growing area of need around the world. You will also be a key member of the core Prospira Global team, working with our network of global consultants and advisors to deliver custom research reports relating to mental health and the private sector.

In this role you will;

- Lead the management and client liaison for research-focused client engagements on a range of topics related to mental health impact and programming
- Manage a small team (including input from a Research Director and Senior Advisors) to design qualitative research methodologies that meet client objectives
- Undertake and manage teams conducting qualitative and quantitative research
- Manage a small team to generate action-oriented and impact-focused research reports
- Support sales and business development efforts to secure additional client research projects

We'd love to hear from you if:

- You have an analytical and social science skill set at degree level or equivalent and at least 5 years of experience in a social research or consulting environment
- You are skilled at both qualitative and quantitative data analysis and research design
- Have exceptional client management skills, with at least 5 years of experience of client management
- Are passionate about good team management, with at least 2 years experience of managing diverse teams
- Experience in undertaking qualitative research techniques that are mental health aware and informed
- You are curious – you don't like leaving questions unanswered, and no one needs to tell you to go look for new information that will help you better meet client needs
- You have strong communication skills, especially for distilling and visualizing data in easily digestible formats
- You thrive in a collaborative environment and enjoy being part of a small and growing team and startup
- You can demonstrate a proven track record of being highly organized and have strong attention to detail
- You have a passion for social change, mental health in particular, and want to be at the forefront of private sector action for improving global mental health
- You have the right to work in the UK
- You are excited about playing a key role in the growth of a small boutique advisory firm focused on mental health, generating new research on this important issue and the role of the private sector

Our ideal candidate would also have:

- Subject-matter expertise: in impact assessments
- Technical expertise: previously worked in a social research/analytics function in a consulting environment with a focus on impact assessments

- Project management: excellent project management skills set delivering to time and budget, as well as sharing progress and stewarding colleagues
- Presentation skills: strong attention to detail and ability to use and design presentations fit for an Executive audience in global companies
- Excellent written and verbal skills: a concise, yet empathetic and emotionally intelligent communicator
- Leadership & initiative: thrive when given autonomy and have intuition for leading a project and stepping up to a challenge
